through the Head of the Institution. The University decides their candidature for the same and enlists their names as Ph.D. guides and make available on the University web portal in the respective disciplines. The lists of Ph.D. guides are revised at regular intervals along with category wise vacant positions. M.J.P. Rohilkhand University (MJPRU), Bareilly, U.P. conducts the Research Entrance Test (RET) time to time. RET and NET qualified candidates call for interview and finally their candidature has been short listed for admission in Research Course Work (RCW) at University centre. After passing the RCW examinations they are advised to contact the research supervisor as mentioned in the list of MJPRU website. The students prepare the synopsis on the topic of their own interest under the supervision of Ph.D. guide, which then is submitted to MJPRU. The University organizes Research Development Committee (RDC) in various subjects to analyze and finalize the synopsis. The RDC committees approve the research proposals and advise to carry out the research work under the supervision of Ph.D. guide at the allocated institutions. After the completion of research work and fulfilling the desired criteria the thesis is submitted to MJPRU for the award of degree of Doctor of Philosophy in concerned subjects.
